MOM BLOWS AWAY HER FOUR SONS

PAUL NEWMAN and Robert Redford played a couple of con men in the movie The Sting.

History's 6 greatest con

Today's crafty con men owe a huge debt to the early con artists who went before them, shrewd hustlers who came up with some of the most ingenious and bold scams ever.

Many of these schemes have been refined over the years and are still in use in various forms today.

By MICHAEL FORSYTH
Weekly World News

Here are the men that researchers single out as the greatest con artists in history:

The Lucky Prospectors — Back in 1872, cunning con men Phil Arnold and John Slack rustled up a group of investors in Wyoming. The fast-talking hustlers then convinced executives at the Bank of California "lucky prospectors" $700,000 for the mining rights — believing they had cheated the poor jerks.

The Great Gangster — In the 1930s, all of Europe was fascinated by colorful American gangsters. At the peak of the frenzy, a German publishing house was offered a manuscript titled Carrying a Gun for Al Capone, a true account of the notorious Chicago mobster's life by one of his top henchmen. . . . because she was mad at men!

SAN DIEGO — A heartless mom was ticked off at the males in her life, so she vented her frustration by blowing out the brains of her own four young sons!

Former hospital worker Susan Eubanks, 35, was convicted of first-degree murder, after gunning down her helpless boys Matthew, 4 months, Brigham, 6, Austin, 7, and Brandon, 14.

"She was fueled by her anger against the men that she perceived had betrayed her," Deputy District Attorney Bonnie Howard-Regan said in court.

By MICHAEL FORSYTH
Weekly World News

"It was callous. It was cold. It was Susan Eubanks not being able to control the men anymore. So they had to suffer, even if it meant taking away the lives of four innocent children."

The chain of events leading up to the senseless killing spree began on October 26, 1997, when Mrs. Eubanks, a recent divorcee, was boozing at a bar with her construction-worker boyfriend.

"They had an argument and he said he wanted to break up with her," Denise Bender, a spokeswoman for the San Diego District Attorney's Office, told Weekly World News.

"They went back to her house and there was a big scene. He wanted to remove some of his stuff and she wouldn't let him. He ended up having to call the Sheriff's Department."

Deputies arrived and quieted the violent row, in which Mrs. Eubanks deliberately smashed her ex-boyfriend's truck. He managed to get away in one piece — but her children weren't so lucky.

Furious at being dumped by first a husband and then a boyfriend, the bitter, twice-scorned woman decided it was payback time. So she got out her .38-caliber pistol and methodically shot each of the terrified boys in his head.

Mrs. Eubanks made her motives clear by leaving a chilling message for her ex-husband Eric.

"She called and left a message on his answering machine," Ms. Bender told the NEWS. "It said, 'I've lost everything I've ever loved. Now it's time for you to do the same.' "

When Eric Eubanks later retrieved the message he was horrified and called the police, who went to the murder mom's home and walked in on the aftermath of the bloody rampage.

After killing the boys, Mrs. Eubanks had reloaded and turned the gun on herself, shooting herself in the stomach.

But she survived the injury and was later charged with multiple murder.

At her trial, which began this August 18, her defense attorney tried to appeal to the jury's sympathy, arguing that she was legally intoxicated at the time of the crimes plus so tanked up on tranquilizers that she was unable to form a conscious intent to commit murder.

But the jury didn't buy it — they convicted the killer mom and voted that she be put to death.

But it later turned out that mob enforcer "Jack Bilbo" was really a German flimflam man named Hugo Baruch who had never even been to Chicago!

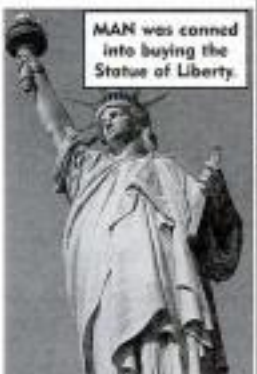
er for $100,000 a year! His biggest snow-job was convincing an Australian businessman that the Statue of Liberty had to be dismantled to widen New York Harbor, so the Aussie bought it for half a million dollars!

The Land Baron — Scheming swindler James Reavis used his knack for forgery to convince railroad tycoons and other businessmen of the 1890s that he was the legal owner of 17,000 square

Mining Company and others shelled out a total of $300,000 a year for the right to use "his" land.

The Singer — Sly turn-of-the-century bunco artist Joseph Weill inspired the movie The Sting. The master was best known for the fake bank scam, in which he rented an abandoned bank, hired fake tellers and bamboozled businessmen into thinking he had started a genuine bank. He waited until enough victims deposited large sums of money before shutting down and



MAN was conned into buying the Statue of Liberty.

Indecisive? Here's how to make decisions

LOS ANGELES — The average American adult makes a whopping 79 important decisions every day, but some people are so plagued by indecision that their lives come almost to a standstill. If you are hemming and hawing over one or more key decisions, you can make that decision with confidence by following these tips from management consultant Robert Heller:

- Determine which decisions must be made quickly and which can wait for more deliberation.
- Make a checklist of the issues, both pro and con.
- Weigh each alternative and determine how likely each is to occur.
- Imagine the worst that could happen and decide whether you could live with that result.
- Take one of the alternatives and take action to implement it.
- Write down your fears and throw them in the trash.

Court says town can boogie the night away!

By MICHAEL FORSYTH / Weekly World News

POUND, Va. — Delighted residents are now free to boogie again for the first time in nearly 20 years in a town where dancing was banned just like in the movie Footloose!

After a federal judge overturned an ordinance that effectively outlawed public dancing, country music fans have been heading in droves to kick up their heels at the local Golden Pine Restaurant, trying out fancy moves like the Texas Two Step, the Boot Scoot and the Tush Push.

"My patrons love it — people love to dance," restaurant owner William Elam, who filed a suit to overturn the ban and operates the only dance hall in town, told Weekly World News.

But not everyone is happy about the recent court ruling. Political leaders and church officials in this town of about 1,000 people are convinced that hip-shimmying and cheek-to-cheek dancing can lead to sinful thoughts.

"There's bound to be trouble when you mix drinking, country music and dancing," worried town council member Daniel Stanley told a reporter.

Passed in the early 1980s, the law banned dancing at any public place that did not get a written permit from the town council — and gave the council absolute power to deny a permit to "anyone who is not of good moral character."

Elam, tired of explaining to out-of-town visitors why they couldn't kick up their heels at his nightspot, applied for a permit last year — the first person ever to do so. The town council stalled the application and brought in 200 citizens to voice their disapproval at a turned down, Elam withdrew the application and went to court to have the regulation overturned altogether.

U.S. District Judge Glen Williams struck down the anti-dancing law, ruling that it violated the Constitution's free-speech guarantee.

Since then, it's been standing room only at the Golden Pine on a Saturday night — although it took some folks who hadn't danced in years and were a bit rusty a while to overcome their shyness.

"It was kind of comical at first," recalls Elam. "People were sitting around looking at each other waiting for someone else to go first."

Convinced that right is on their side, the town council has announced plans to reword the ordinance to pass constitutional muster.

But Elam's attorney Michael Ralston told the NEWS that having the right to dance is important, "because we're Americans."

RESTAURANT OWNER William Elam relaxes at the bar after his successful court battle to overturn the town dancing ban.

New study reveals winning pickup lines ... that can spark an instant romance!

When you want to meet an alluring stranger, there are some right lines to use — and there are definitely some wrong lines, says an expert.

"I'm sort of shy but I'd like to meet you," is a good line to try. It's an example of the direct approach, says psychologist Dr. Charles L. Kleinke, who found in new studies that opening lines fall into three types.

By JUNE SAWYER
Weekly World News

They are the direct approach, the harmless question and the cute-flippant lines.

"You look like a warm person," "Hi, I like you" and "You seem different. I like that," are direct approaches.

Harmless opening questions — which are also effective — include:

"Have you seen any real fantastic movies lately?" or "Where are you from?" or "I know I've seen you before. Do you live around here?"

But lines you should definitely avoid are the cute-flippant openers, such as, "Do you fool around?" and "Isn't it cold? Let's make some body heat."

Men didn't rate lines like these lines very highly — but women actually hated them, said Dr. Kleinke, who surveyed about 1,000 subjects at Boston College, asking them to rate opening lines for his study.

"Two opening lines women absolutely hate are, 'Is that your real hair?' and 'You remind me of a woman I used to date,' Dr. Kleinke said.

It's wise to tailor your approach to the situation. For example, here are the best opening lines to use in a bar, according to Dr. Kleinke: "Do you want to dance?" or "It took a lot of nerve for me to approach you" or "May I have a drink with you?"

But the worst openers are: "I don't like your jewelry" and "Bet I can out-drink you."

Some good supermarket openers are: "Excuse me, which steak looks better to you?" or "How do you tell a good

It's full of cholesterol,' " advised Dr. Kleinke, author of the book First Impressions.

And excellent opening lines at a restaurant include these: "Would you like to have a drink with me after dinner?" and "Since we're both eating alone, would you like to join me?"

But the worst are: "If this food doesn't kill us, the bill will" or "If you think the service is bad, wait until you taste the food!"

Hijacker kills 747 pilot in midair — because the guy wouldn't let him fly the plane!

Japanese hijacker kills jet's pilot

Two other pilots subdue man who said he wanted to fly plane

NEWSPAPERS around the world reported this shocking story.

By KEVIN CREED / Weekly World News

TOKYO — A frustrated would-be pilot hijacked a passenger plane and brutally murdered the jet's captain — because the pilot refused to give him a flying lesson and wouldn't let him fly the airplane!

Japanese authorities said the knife-wielding man forced his way into the cockpit of All Nippon Airways Flight 61 and ordered the co-pilot and another crewman out of the compartment. He then commanded pilot Naoyuki Nagashima to let him take the controls of the Boeing 747 and demanded that the pilot "give him some pointers."

When Nagashima refused, the man slashed his throat, killing him.

"I only wanted to take a flying lesson and do some loops," he later told police.

The hijacker, unemployed laborer Yuji Nishizawa, boarded the flight alone. Witnesses described him as "nervous" and "fidgety." About 15 minutes into the flight between Tokyo and Nagasaki, Nishizawa got out of his seat and walked to the cabin. One woman said she thought he was going to lodge a complaint about the flight.

Instead, he pulled an 8-inch knife on one of the flight attendants and forced his way into the cockpit.

'I only wanted to take a flying lesson and do some loops,' killer says

After he killed the pilot and took control of the plane, it became clear that Nishizawa had no idea what he was doing. The plane lost altitude immediately. At one point it plunged 2,000 feet in less than five minutes, the Transportation Ministry reported.

The incident ended when the co-pilot and other crewmen stormed the cockpit and subdued Nishizawa.

They returned the plane to Tokyo's Haneda Airport, where Nishizawa was promptly arrested.

Friends of Nishizawa were stunned by his bizarre behavior. He had no prior arrests and no history of mental illness.

"He always wanted to be a pilot and he was obsessed with learning to fly," said one former co-worker.

"But he could never afford flying lessons.

"I guess he just snapped."

Police have charged Nishizawa with murder and kidnapping.

The incident marks Japan's first-ever deadly hijacking.

WORLD'S BEST WEATHERMAN DOESN'T USE BAROMETERS OR RADAR — HE JUST LOOKS OUT THE WINDOW

. . . and he's only been wrong twice in his life!

SYDNEY, Australia — A meteorologist whose flawless forecasts have dumbfounded his rivals for more than 20 years has finally revealed his secret: He simply looks out the window!

TV weatherman Jim Doggerty, whose predictions have been wrong only twice in more than 5,800 broadcasts, admitted in a recent interview that he never bothers to look at barometers, Doppler radar or satellite photos.

GEORGE SANFORD
Weekly World News

"I learned how to use all that stuff back in school, but frankly, I find that I do better just trusting my instincts," the easy-going Doggerty, 45, told a newspaper here.

"I open the window, stick out my hand to get a feel for the temperature and look up to check out the cloud patterns. It really gives me a good idea of what to expect."

Doggerty's maverick approach works like a charm. Other weather experts reluctantly agree he's the most accurate meteorologist the city has ever had.

"When Doggerty says it's going to rain, it's going to rain — you can take that to the bank," marvels fellow weatherman Ed Furdman.

"And you never catch him trying to hedge his bets with the old 'partly cloudy with a chance of showers' kind of dodge. He makes a rock-solid prediction — and of course, he's always right.

"We're all somewhat envious of him."

Doggerty is the last person in the world who would ever put down the science of meteorology or the new high-tech equipment available today.

NEAR-PERFECT WEATHERMAN: Jim Doggerty

"All that equipment is great," he said. "It's just not for me. I used conventional measuring devices for a couple of years when I first started out, but I kept noticing that every time the equipment disagreed with me, it turned out that it was wrong and I was right."

Experts can't explain Doggerty's amazing talent. One paranormal researcher has even suggested that the father of four might have hidden psychic ability that helps him to predict the future.

That makes the veteran weatherman chuckle.

"I'm not psychic — I've just got a great nose for weather," he said.

NEW MOMS ARE STAYING IN HOSPITALS LONGER!

WASHINGTON — In 1995, the average new mom spent only a day and a half in the hospital after having a baby. But the average hospital stay increased to more than two days in 1999.

Experts say the reason is that insurance companies used to pay for only one day of hospitalization. But after numerous complaints, a law went into effect in 1997 that requires insurance companies to cover 48 hours.

So moms no longer feel rushed to get out and go home.

THE HIDDEN DANGER LURKING IN THE UNITED

Did you know that a bunch of Arab towel-heads, savages, idol worshippers and wacky Pakis are

By PRICE HAMLET / Weekly World News

NEW YORK CITY — Hardly a day passes when the United Nations doesn't make a decision that will affect you and your children for the rest of your lives, but what do you really know about this oddball collection of weirdly dressed and often shifty foreigners — many of whom had never seen a fork, telephone, television or car until they arrived at U.N. headquarters here?

"How much do you know about the United Nations? Probably not much," former CIA operative and U.N. expert Mark Brandler told reporters.

'The average U.N. representative doesn't even know how to use a fork!'

"The fact is, I don't know how much the U.N. knows about the U.N. I mean, come on — you can't pluck men and women out of deserts and jungles, off islands and mountaintops, and then throw them into a skyscraper in the middle of New York City and expect them to have any kind of handle on what they're supposed to be doing and why they're supposed to be doing it.

"That is especially true when you realize that, on average, representatives have just a fourth-grade education. Many have never set foot in a schoolroom, much less studied in one.

"And yet, we expect them to make decisions about social, political, cultural and military issues that are so complex the world's best minds aren't real clear on them.

"I have to tell you — only the bows down before dung beetles and ask him to weigh in on issues like nuclear disarmament and chemical and biological warfare — issues that profoundly affect the national security of the United States.

"For that matter, how can you take a man or a woman who's idea of economic planning is to stash away an extra animal skin to trade for a sewing needle and ask him to figure out the best way to dole out hundreds of billions of dollars — many of which are your tax dollars — in foreign aid?

Mark Brandler

"It's like asking a baby to build the Empire State Building with Play Doh and Lincoln Logs. It just ain't gonna happen. But for some reason, we keep pretending that it will.

"The fact is, the average U.N. representative doesn't even know how to use a fork!"

Brandler points out that most people think of the United States, Russia, China, Japan, Israel, the United Kingdom, France, Germany and a few other European countries as being the 'world'.

"But when the U.N. gets together, you have representatives from 185 countries — 185!" continues the expert.

"Try to name just 50 and you'll begin to see what a complicated mess the United Nations really is. Most of these people come from countries that are so incredibly backward and poor that only a handful of the richest citizens have ever used a telephone or seen a newspaper or a TV.

"The life expectancy in these countries hovers around the age of 40. Just stop and

"It's clear that a man or woman who expects to die at the age of 40 isn't going to view life and the world like you and I do — not by a long-shot. But that doesn't keep the United Nations from empowering them to make decisions that affect us all, not just for now, but forever."

Here, according to Brandler, are little known facts about the U.N.

"If you are shocked," he added, "call or write your Congressmen and tell them to stop the madness and get us out of the U.N. — be-ice picks, handguns, poison powders and liquids, voodoo dolls and razor-sharp karate "throwing stars" — from members each and every day the U.N. is in session.

Over the years, although none has died, three representatives actually have been hit with poison darts while addressing the General Assembly.

FACT: Almost half of the 185 countries represented in the United Nations consider women to be second-class citizens with few if any rights beyond the right to bear and rear children and do what men tell them to do.

FACT: A staggering 82 percent of nationalities represented in the U.N. consider themselves and their people to be smarter, stronger, prettier and more capable than all other nationalities despite the passage of hundreds of resolutions declaring all men to have been created equally.

FACT: On at least 22 occasions since the U.N. was founded in kets as a malfunctioning boom box, an electric blanket, costume jewelry, Monopoly money and a six-month supply of canned corn.

In each instance, the trade was discovered and undone by majority vote of the General Assembly.

FACT: Dozens of resolutions proposing animal and human sacrifices to end droughts, plagues and pestilence have been proposed and narrowly rejected on the floor of the General Assembly.

FACT: Slightly more than half of U.N. representatives believe that having their picture taken results in the loss of their souls. Needless to say, terror ensues anytime anyone pulls a camera out on the floor of the U.N. and that's why the movement of news photographers is severely restricted.

FACT: Throughout the 1960s and 1970s, a block of 26 Third World countries consistently sided with the United States against the Soviet Union until it finally occurred to them that they, themselves, were socialists — and should have been siding with the Russians.

FACT: At last count, 54 percent of representatives absolutely refused to believe that American astronauts have been to the moon. A slightly smaller percentage, 51 percent, think the world is flat and give no more credence to a newscast showing shuttle astronauts zipping through space than they give to a Disney cartoon.

FACT: When put to a vote — as it has been on 11 occasions — grasshoppers and termites consistently rank as the "official snack food" of the U.N.

FACT: The authors of children's books are often enlisted to help write U.N. resolutions so that representatives will have a better chance of understanding them.

It's never been stated for the record, but the beloved Dr. Seuss is believed to have ghostwritten no fewer than 600 resolutions before his death in 1991.

FACT: Six representatives have shrunken a head in the past six months — eight others have tasted human flesh.

FACT: One third of representatives have two or more wives.

FACT: Surveys show that U.N. representatives are far more fascinated with fire than the general population.

Cigarette lighters and kitchen matches are far and away the No. 1 gift representatives send back home.

FACT: The official languages of the United Nations are English

IS BEAUTIFUL MYSTERY GIRL A REAL-LIFE ANGEL?

HEAVEN SENT: Slender being claims to be a messenger from God.

She has no sex organs and no known blood type — and she's surrounded by a soft, golden glow!

By MIKE FOSTER / Weekly World News

JERUSALEM — After running a battery of more than 48 different medical tests, puzzled physicians admit they still can't say with certainty whether the mystery girl found in the desert by Israeli troops over the summer is an ordinary human or an actual angel.

The gentle, soft-spoken creature appears to be a young adult female with no physical imperfections — as well as no apparent sex organs — and is constantly surrounded by a soft, golden haze.

"We have been unable to isolate the source of the glow," said Dr. Moshe Horowitz, a cardiologist who participated in the extensive examination. "We have detected no signs of exposure to radiation or contamination by phosphorous."

Investigators say the slender being has the breasts of a normal human female, "but down below looks just like a little girl's doll."

"She has no external genitalia and furthermore, X-rays determined that she has no internal reproductive organs whatsoever," confirms Dr. Horowitz. "We've never seen anything like it."

When the woman was found in the desert by five soldiers on patrol on August 24, she refused to present identification papers and would say only that she was a "messenger from God."

Her flowing white robes — which appeared to have fallen from the sky — were ripped to shreds by the jagged rocks of the hill and stopped dead — convinced the soldiers that she was an angel. And by the time they escorted her back to headquarters, rumors were flying about the discovery.

Despite efforts to keep the story under wraps, it was soon picked up by Israeli tabloids, which churned out headlines such as "Angel or Spy?" and "Angel Captured!"

A team of more than a dozen physicians with a variety of specialties were brought in to examine the woman by government officials, who reluctantly agreed to make the findings public.

Among the physical anomalies discovered by the scientists and released to the press: The woman's blood does not match any known type; her heart beats just 10 times per minute; she has no navel or any indication of ever having had an umbilical cord; her sodium level is 500 times the norm; the pineal gland in her brain is 20 times larger than that of an average human.

The mystery woman has thus far refused to divulge her message to the world — insisting that she must speak directly with Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak.

But she reportedly told one of the soldiers, "The King of Israel must make preparations, for the King of all Kings is coming soon."

CHOCOLATE IS GREAT FOR YOU!

AMSTERDAM — Who says we never hear good news anymore? A brand-new study shows chocolate is great for you!

That's right. Research by Dr. Ilja Arts of the National Institute of Public Health and Environment in the Netherlands reveals that chocolate contains high levels of antioxidant substances called catechins that help fight cancer and heart disease.

For years, scientists have been telling us to drink tea because it contains these substances. But Dr. Arts and her colleagues found that there are 53.5 milligrams of health-promoting catechins per hundred grams of dark chocolate — a lot more than are found in tea.

LADY MOTORIST PLOWS INTO ALABAMA CHAIN GANG — AND KILLS MAN WHO RAPED HER 10 YEARS AGO!

MOBILE, Ala — A lady motorist passing by a roadside prison work detail spotted the brute who raped her 10 years ago — so she spun around, put the pedal to the metal and mowed him down!

Now the vigilante driver could face years behind bars. But so far, she has expressed no remorse.

"When I recognized that SOB and saw that familiar little smirk on his face, I didn't think twice — I just hit the accelerator," the striking, 34-year-old blonde later told a reporter.

Dan Greggins

Alabama officials have slapped a lid of secrecy over the circumstances surrounding the bizarre incident, fearing a backlash against the use of chain gangs.

They have refused to release any details about the case — declining to officially confirm that it even occurred.

"Frankly, they are trying to make this whole thing disappear," a law enforcement insider said.

But freelance reporter Dan Greggins, who heard the original call on his police scanner and arrived at the accident scene even before the cops, managed to piece together the shocking chain of events.

"When I got there, I saw this Honda Civic in a ditch," he said.

"A prisoner was lying dead and there were about a dozen other guys from the chain gang standing around, looking bewildered.

"The corrections officers were holding a woman for questioning.

"The guards wouldn't talk, but one of the prisoners told me that the man who was run over was a big, tough guy named Johnson."

The witness told Greggins that the woman's light green 1993 Honda swerved off the road, came barreling directly at Johnson and hit him so hard "his body flew 20 feet."

The reporter interviewed the woman briefly before state troopers arrived and whisked her off.

Her name is being withheld by Weekly World News because she is the victim of a sex crime.

Q I feel sorry for poor Gary Coleman. I know he must have been close to actress Dana Plato, who played his adopted sister on the hit sitcom Diff'rent Strokes, and her death — one in a long string of tragedies for the former stars of the show — must have hit him hard. Has he got over it yet?

— Nina F., West Point, Ga.

Pint-size Gary Coleman after learning of Dana Plato's fatal drug overdose: My TV sister is dead? Who cares!

A The pint-size former child star got over Dana's death in about two milliseconds!

"I was not upset or surprised," coolheaded Gary told People magazine after his TV sister's fatal drug overdose. His biggest concern, the now-broke performer says, was for "the press issue and whether it would affect my ability to get employment."

Q Is it true that superstar Cher has been celibate for six years? If so, why? She's beautiful, rich and famous. How could someone like her have trouble finding a man?

— Georgiana S., Columbus, Ga.

NO SEX FOR 6 YEARS: Cher.

A The Believe singer did take a six-year break from sex following her split with Bon Jovi guitarist Richie Sambora. One thing that's made it hard finding a suitable mate: Most men have such big egos, her fame gets in the way. "No man wants to be Mr. Cher," she explained in an interview earlier this year, adding she didn't find male attention all that important. "I've always thought of men as a luxury, not a necessity."

Q Please settle a running argument I've been having with my sister once and for all. Is actor Kevin Spacey, star of L.A. Confidential, American Beauty and many other movies, gay or not?

— Mandy E., Prescott, Ariz.

I LOVE gay rumors: Kevin Spacey.

A Spacey is straight as an arrow! After the star played a flamboyant gay blade in the crime drama Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil, an Esquire article came out in 1997 insinuating that he really did have sugar in his shoes. Spacey didn't directly refute the charge at the time, but he recently told Playboy, "It's not true."

But the girl-crazy actor hasn't exactly been haunted by the lingering rumor — because it's landed him plenty of beautiful women. "They want to be the one to turn me around," he says. "I let them!"

Q Whatever happened to Margot Kidder? She was so wonderful as Lois Lane in the Superman movies opposite Christopher Reeve, but I haven't seen hide nor hair of her in ages.

— Jerry S., Thornton, Colo.

A The husky-voiced actress has spent years battling severe manic depression that once reduced her to wandering the streets like a bag lady — and she's finally managed to get the crippling mood disorder under control. Now the spunky star is calling on her "fellow nuts," as she puts it, to toss out their pill bottles and cure mental illness the natural way, just as she did — with herbs and other alternative treatments. Margot blasts the use of psychiatric drugs as a personality-erasing "pharmacological lobotomy."

Q As a struggling actress I just can't stand it when I see all these other girls get all the good movie roles just because they're related to a big star, like Henry Fonda's granddaughter Bridget Fonda. Wouldn't you agree that having a famous name makes film success a piece of cake?

— Amy F., New York, N.Y.

A Not necessarily. Bridget, the daughter of Peter Fonda and niece of Jane, says she really had to struggle just to survive acting school — and her pedigree actually made life harder.

"What I had was beyond stage fright," the Lake Placid star admitted in an interview. "I'd think, 'I'm the worst person in class.' They all looked at me like I should know better — because of my heritage. I could be yelled at by the teacher, humiliated. But I couldn't give up because I'm stubborn."

Q I'm a big fan of singer Whitney Houston. Did she always know she'd be a big success or was she plagued by self-doubt like so many other young performers?

— Carrie F., Newark, N.J.

A Whitney has always known that she was more talented and beautiful than other would-be superstars — and never doubted for a minute that she would make it to the top of the showbiz heap.

Scientists' research reveals . . .

It takes 3 million years for a human soul to reach Heaven

. . . and no one from Earth has arrived there yet!

SHINING CITY floating deep in outer space has been photographed by both the Hubble Space Telescope and the Mars Pathfinder probe.

By MIKE FOSTER
Weekly World News

Heaven is a mind-boggling 3 billion light-years from Earth, space scientists have recently determined — a distance so vast that not a single person who's died in all of recorded history has yet reached the Pearly Gates!

"Even traveling 1,000 times faster than the speed of light, a human soul would take 3 million years to cross that gap," explained French astrophysicist Antoinne Letelier.

"That means that even the earliest prehistoric ancestors of modern man are only now beginning to arrive in Paradise.

"Apparently, that 'tunnel of light' described so often by people who've had near-death experiences is far, far longer than any of us previously imagined!"

Startling photos taken by both the Hubble Space Telescope and the Mars Pathfinder have pinpointed a shining white city suspended in the blackness of space, roughly 3 billion light-years away.

Those secret NASA photos, leaked by an insider and published in Weekly World News, are widely believed to depict Heaven itself.

And the implication of the great distance is staggering.

"Even a single light-year, the distance light travels in one year, is enormous — 5.8 trillion miles," said Prof. Letelier.

"Presumably, the human soul has zero mass, allowing it to travel at the speed of light — the fastest any natural object can move.

"In fact, let's assume that because of its supernatural nature, a soul can travel 1,000 times faster than light.

"Even at that breakneck rate, the earliest cavemen would just now be arriving at Heaven's gates . . . and if you died today, you wouldn't get there until the year 2998003 A.D."

Even the Greek philosopher Socrates, who died in 399 B.C., and Abraham Lincoln, assassinated in 1865, are still in transit, according to Prof. Letelier's theory.

The scientist noted that the time factor is important because people should know they must prepare mental games to keep busy on the long voyage to Paradise: "You certainly don't want to show up at God's home as a raving lunatic!"

While not endorsing Prof. Letelier's theory, church leaders are intrigued. Said a Lutheran minister, "Science is showing us that the afterlife does not consist merely of a quick trip straight to Heaven but a long and wondrous journey."

FARMER SUFFERS HEART ATTACK — & RIDES COW 5 MILES FOR HELP!

LUCKY TO BE ALIVE: Farmer Casey McKillick owes his life to his milk cow Christine, who trudged cross-country to carry him to safety.

BOSSY TO THE RESCUE!

SAN ANGELO, Texas — Unsuspecting oldster Casey McKillick was mending a fence on a remote section of farmland west of here when he suffered a severe heart attack and seemed destined to die all alone under the sweltering Texas sun.

But the frantic farmer managed to save his own life by climbing onto the back of his gentle milk cow Christine — and riding the bewildered bossy five miles to find help!

'I just threw my arms around her neck and hung on,' says grateful oldster!

"I was sick — really, really sick — and I knew if I did not get to a doctor fast, I was a goner for sure," recuperating Casey, 67, later told a reporter.

By JOE BERGER
Weekly World News

"The nearest road where there'd be anybody around was more than five miles away and I didn't know if I could drive that far or not. But I pulled myself into the truck and tried to start 'er up — and suddenly the damn thing was deader than a doornail.

"That's when I looked around and saw old Christine, and I thought to myself, 'Girl, you've got to help me, 'cause you're my only hope.' "

Nearly delirious with pain, dazed Casey crawled onto the confused cow's back and headed for the highway.

"I just threw my arms around her neck and prodded her to get moving, and she took off loping along, like she knew she had something important to do," the grateful gramps recalled.

"She let me steer her down the little trail and over a couple of pretty good-size hills. It seemed like it took forever, but just about the time I thought I couldn't hang on any longer, we hit a little rise and there was the road.

"We got there and the minute we did, this real nice fellow named Al that I'd never met before came along in his pickup and I didn't even have to flag him down. The poor guy just had to stop to find out why some idiot was lying there on the back of an old milk cow."

Flabbergasted Allen Trios, 28, pulled his pickup to the side of the road, planning to snap a picture of the old man and his bovine buddy to show to his parents.

"But as soon as I got out of my truck, I could see this was no laughing matter," said the bachelor mechanic. "The man was barely alive and mumbling that he'd had a heart attack, so I tied up his cow, loaded him into the pickup and headed out as fast as that truck would go."

And docs say ailing Casey hobbled into the hospital emergency just in the nick of time.

"I lost 40 percent of my heart as it was, but thanks to Al and Christine, I'm alive and getting healthier by the day," said the tickled widower.

"But it's a funny thing about Christine. Every time I go near her, she takes about three steps back and gives me this funny look as if to say, 'Milk me if you want to, but no more five mile walks, okay?' "

WIESBADEN, Germany — When a creep jumped into a young fashion model's car at a stoplight and tried to steal a kiss, the lady went along until the time was right — then bit the man's tongue off!

THINK YOU'VE GOT THE FLU? IT MAY BE POISON!

Do you suffer from frequent flu-like symptoms: Headaches, nausea, dizziness? It's possible it's not the flu but the first signs of carbon monoxide poisoning, experts say.

Carbon monoxide poisoning — most commonly caused by auto exhaust from worn-through tailpipes and mufflers — can happen to anyone. And it frequently does!

"I have found that mild carbon monoxide poisoning is a great imitator of flu symptoms, and it is often misdiagnosed. It tends to be overlooked or confused with something else," reveals internist Dr. Frederick Platt.

He estimated that an incredible 100,000 cases of low-level carbon monoxide poisoning are going undetected or misdiagnosed every year.

Dr. Ted Grace, an internist and one-time accidental victim of carbon monoxide poisoning, agrees.

"Often, people will think they have the flu. Even their doctors will think that."

A defective or a worn-through tailpipe or muffler leaking exhaust beneath a car's passenger compartment can poison the interior.

If you can smell exhaust fumes when you're behind the wheel — particularly when your windows are rolled up — have your car checked out by a mechanic.

Faulty oil and gas home furnaces, gas hot water heaters and inefficient flues have also been blamed for many cases of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Be sure they are all in tip-top condition.

If you are frequently plagued by headaches, nausea or dizziness — see a doctor. He can order a simple blood test to check for carbon monoxide poisoning.

MY AMERICA By ED ANGER

You never saw The Beaver parked in front of a computer!

Today's fat & lazy kids need a swift kick in the keister!

WHATEVER happened to those active kids like Wally and The Beav on Leave It To Beaver? They weren't like today's lardbutts.

I'm madder than a nerd with a busted calculator over a new study that shows American kids are the fattest and most disgusting bunch of couch potatoes in the history of the world.

Seventy percent of our boys and girls can't do a single chin-up, for crying out loud! Forty percent of the boys and 70 percent of the girls are pooped after a single push-up. Forty percent of the boys can't even touch their toes and 25 percent of all kids can't do one sit-up!

Let's face it, folks. That's so pathetic it makes me want to throw up. I could do 100 pull-ups when I was in the third grade, for Pete's sake!

What our little lardtails need is a swift kick in the keister, if you want my opinion.

What makes me so pig-biting mad about our flabby, spineless brats is, where the hell are our future Marines and fighter pilots going to come from? Not from candy addicts who barely have enough muscle to press the button on a remote channel changer, by gum!

What this country needs is a national boot camp for these fat crybabies where we can turn 'em into REAL men and women who'll have the strength to protect our great land.

Whatever happened to those great American kids like on Leave It To Beaver where The Beav and his brother Wally were always on the go?

How many times did you see The Beaver watching the boob tube, or playing a computer game, huh? None, I'll tell ya, that's how many.

He was always climbing trees or helping his dad Ward Cleaver rake the leaves or something.

And that's what we need today, folks. A bunch of Beavers who'll grow up into lean, mean fighting machines.

Beans, beans, the musical fruit — & they lower cholesterol to boot!

You can significantly reduce cholesterol levels in your body and cut your risk of heart disease — just by eating two ounces of beans every day.

By PAT WELLS
Weekly World News

"Beans reduce the risk of deadly heart disease by dramatically reducing cholesterol," said Dr. Herman Hellerstein.

The highly beneficial effects of beans in the diet were reported by some Chinese researchers who were looking for ways to treat high blood cholesterol without drugs that have side effects.

In a 15-month study of 242 people, scientists found that cholesterol levels were lowered within one to three months after adding beans to the diet.

Cholesterol levels in people who had high cholesterol were lowered by 20 percent, while people with low or normal cholesterol levels were reduced by a significant 9.5 percent.

"The fact that it lowered the cholesterol level of people with low cholesterol to start with and did the same exact thing with people who had elevated cholesterol makes this extremely valuable," Dr. Hellerstein said.

Dr. Robert Schlant, a professor of medicine, said: "I would think eating beans is a reasonable thing in terms of reducing heart disease.

"I would suggest this to persons who definitely want to cut down on the risk of having heart attacks."

Dr. Hellerstein said any kind of beans can be used in the diet — "lima beans, kidney beans, all kinds of beans."

It is not known exactly why beans lower cholesterol.

However, scientists say that there is evidence that sitrosterol, which beans are rich in, may inhibit the absorption of cholesterol by the body.

Both Dr. Hellerstein and Dr. Schlant, however, cautioned that foods that are heavy in animal fats, like ice cream, milk and steak, should be reduced in the American diet.

Abominable snowmen on sex spree?

LASHA, Tibet — This country's Red Chinese overlords have a new problem on their hands — Yeti babies!

More than 8,000 Tibetan women claim to have been made pregnant by Yetis — also known as Abominable Snow-men. And they want the government to pay for raising their oddball offspring!

The youngsters, who typically are covered with fine white hair, are "completely human," according to Chinese scientists, who blame the unusual characteristics on inbreeding in remote areas of the Himalayas.

They call the widespread Yeti claims the result of "mass hysteria."

Red-faced NASA officials reveal . . .

WATER FOUND ON MOON IS ASTRONAUT PEE!

NASA refuses to identify the astronauts who left the urine on the moon, for reasons of "personal confidentiality."

By ALEX MORGAN / Weekly World News

Forget about all the hullabaloo over scientists finding ice on the moon — now red-faced NASA officials have discovered the frozen liquid came from a couple of astronauts who had to relieve themselves during moonwalks back in the 1970s!

"This is perhaps the most humiliating episode in the history of the U.S. space program," said an inside NASA source, who asked to remain anonymous. "When the ice was first discovered it was obviously very exciting news — and in their rush to make an announcement, several high-ranking officials forgot to check all the facts."

Primary among these facts was the chemical composition of the ice — which is identical to human urine.

"When the chemical components were finally identified, it was like someone had dropped a bomb in the NASA headquarters," the source said. "It was like a cruel hoax had been played on every one of us."

The source said the astronauts who left the mess on the moon have been identified but their names will not be made public.

"Quite obviously, they didn't relieve themselves like some men do if they are out in the woods or on a golf course," the source said. "Astronauts' space suits allow them to empty their bladders at any time they need to, and the urine is stored in a special pouch.

"They can discharge the contents of this pouch whenever they want. They did this while they were on the surface of the moon. And now all these years later there has been a terrible misunderstanding.

"Originally we thought we'd found a huge frozen lake on the moon — and it turned out to be just a small patch of frozen human urine."

Govt. warning: Vampires terrorizing menstruating women!

By KEVIN CREED / Weekly World News

BRASOV, Romania — The Romanian Tourist Bureau has issued an official statement warning women who are having their periods not to hike in the vampire-infested Carpathian Mountains — because menstruating women are 90 percent more likely to be attacked by the violent blood-suckers!

A recent government report stated that there were 307 vampire attacks on women in 1998 — 302 of them fatal. Of those attacks, an amazing 277 of the victims were at some stage of their menstrual cycle.

The majority of the women were visiting from other countries — and 207 were American.

"In America, people think a vampire is just a phony monster that someone in Hollywood dreamed up," said Tourist Bureau spokesman Lajos Creanga.

"But here in Romania, most people know better.

"There is an actual medical condition called porphyria. One particular variety of the illness, known as 'the vampire strain,' is characterized by a severe iron deficiency. The vampire strain gives victims an insatiable thirst for human blood.

"Unfortunately, it also gives them superhuman strength.

"Scientists don't know why, but there are an unusually large number of these vampires in the Carpathian Mountain region. Romanians know to avoid that area at night. And women here know that traveling at 'that time of the month' is extremely risky."

One of vampire porphyria's symptoms is an enhancement of the senses. Experts believe that vampires, like sharks, are very sensitive to the smell of blood. They cannot resist the urge to attack when the scent is in the air.

Creanga says he hopes the warning will not discourage visitors from coming to Romania.

"We hope the severity of this Carpathian Mountain situation won't cause people in other countries to overreact," he said. "There are a lot of wonderful things to see and do in our nation.

"Please don't let this one trouble spot blind you to the beauty of the rest of Romania."

Man keeps vigil at 2-year-old's grave for 36 years!

INNOCENT VICTIM Emma Ohlsson died instantly.

GUILT-RIDDEN Bernt Knutsson sits in his wheelchair 12 to 14 hours a day thinking about his little victim.

He killed the little girl while driving drunk back in 1963!

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Day after day for 36 years, guilt-ridden Bernt Knutsson has kept a lonely wheelchair vigil at the grave of Emma Ohlsson — the 2-year-old tyke he killed while dead drunk at the wheel of his car in October 1963.

By TONY CASSIDY
Weekly World News

In rain or snow, blistering heat or bone-numbing cold, 12 to 14 hours a day, Bernt has maintained his anguished vigil of remorse!

Three days after little Emma was buried, Bernt, then a 30-year-old medical intern, condemned himself to a wasted life in a wheelchair with a suicide leap that succeeded only in shattering his spine.

"They didn't send me to prison for what I did because I hadn't been in trouble before," Knutsson told Weekly World News in the only interview he's given in more than three decades. "So I put myself in my own prison.

"When I killed Emma, I destroyed her mother and father as well. I couldn't have done it better if I had put a gun to their heads. I know it doesn't matter to anyone, but her death also ended my life. I deserve worse."

Knutsson was tried and convicted on a charge of causing a death while driving intoxicated. At his trial, he refused to present any defense or offer any excuse for what happened that terrible winter day.

But friends who testified in his behalf said he had been putting in long hours studying for an exam he had earlier flunked and was dead tired.

Jon Karlsson testified. "But he was so exhausted, they were more than he could handle. He was not much of a drinker.

"Apparently the alcohol didn't really hit him until he was driving his car. Bernt has never talked about it, but witnesses said his car started weaving all over the road before it veered onto the sidewalk where the child was walking with her mother.

"Bernt's car merely brushed the mother aside. But it hit the child full on, flinging her several feet through the air. Mercifully, she was killed instantly. The little tot never knew what hit her."

Knutsson tried unsuccessfully to end his own life by leaping from the roof of his four-story apartment building.

"I wanted to die," Knutsson explained. "I had no right to live. But all I did was make myself a helpless cripple.

"Being here at Emma's grave every day is my penance. Her father is dead now, but Emma's mother comes at least once a week. I always move away. I have no right to cause her any more pain.

"But I return after she leaves. I just sit here with Em-

Fire up your love life with fish hooks, bullets & a bar of soap!

You can fire up your love life overnight with ordinary items like fish hooks, bullets and a bar of soap!

That's the word from Harvard psychologists who found in a massive study that couples who take just three to five seconds a day to express their love for one another in simple and inexpensive but creative ways engage in sex at least four times as often as those who don't.

And when given a choice of three words to describe their love life, those same couples choose "electrifying" over "very good" and "adequate" every time.

Men and women who have learned how to express their love for one another simply and regularly have the most sex and the best sex — period," declared one researcher.

"These couples have learned that it isn't what you say to your spouse or lover that opens the door to great sex, it's how you say it and how often you say it that really counts.

"We found, for instance, that leaving a hastily scribbled 'I love you' on a scrap of paper for your lover to find or even giving him an inexpensive 'gift' such as fish hooks or a few sticks of gum is every bit as likely to win you a love session as a dozen red roses or a gift of fine jewelry.

"There's something about the spontaneity of the scribbled note or cheap gift that touches both men and women on a profoundly deep level. And unlike flowers, jewelry and other expensive gifts, which often have the 'feel' of bribes, these are things you can 'lavish' on your lover every day.

"Statistics vary, but it's safe to say the average American couple engages in sexual intimacies four times a month.

"By way of comparison, couples who take those few seconds to express their love for one another four times a week."

In conducting their study of 3,000 couples nationwide, the experts discovered a number of inexpensive and ingenious ways that savvy couples have found to keep their interest in one another at fever pitch.

Following their example, you can:

- Write "I love you!" on a bathroom mirror with a bar of soap. For added impact, don't wipe it off . . . ever!
- Scribble "I want you!" or other Valentine-like messages such as "Hot Mama!" or "Ooo, Baby!" on a scrap of paper adorned with "smiley faces" or any other day-brightening or sexually suggestive doodle you can think of. Tape it to a broom or mop handle, the dishwasher, the steering wheel of your car — anywhere your lover is sure to find it!
- Buy an inexpensive gift and hide it where your lover will stumble onto it after he leaves the house.

If your man likes to hunt or fish, for example, you can slip a package of fish hooks or a few new bullets or shotgun shells in his briefcase or lunch box before he goes to work.

If your gal likes sweets or wears lots of makeup, you can drop a few messy-but-sensual candies — chocolate-covered cherries, for instance — or a tube of lip gloss in her purse. It might sound corny. But the Harvard study confirms that the tiniest of surprises say "I love you" in a very sexy way!

- Telephone your spouse and say, "I love you, baby!" at odd hours of the day. Don't wait for a response — hang up as soon as you blurt it out.

"We don't really know why, but the message seems to be sexier that way," the researchers said.

Fed-up wife cuts off hubby's manhood — then flushes it down the toilet!

BERLIN — Housewife Gerda Niehus, 37, snipped off her husband's penis with a pair of scissors as he slept — then flushed it down the toilet!

"The woman said her husband was a brute who continued to have sex with her even after she told him she didn't want sex with him ever again," said a police investigator. "So she took care of the problem in the only way she knew how — then flushed his manhood down the toilet so it could never be reattached."

Hans Niehus, 42, survived the attack and was released

World's HOTTEST calculus teacher wants my body!

CHAS in South Carolina.

Dear Dotti: You wouldn't believe how clumsy my math teacher is. I mean every day she drops her pencil like 10 or 12 times right when she walks by my desk. And then, of course, she has to bend way over in front of me to pick it up. And with those short skirts she wears — Lord, have mercy! — I have to turn my head to keep from having a heart attack. She doesn't wear panties, either! I wouldn't mind if she were an ugly old prune in her 40s or 50s like most of my teachers — at least that way I wouldn't get excited. But she's like just out of college and looks like a Hustler girl! Help me, Dotti! Please! — Chas in South Carolina

Dear Chas: I got quite the chuckle out of your little fantasy and I feel sure your calculus teacher, principal, parents and preacher will, too. You see, I sent copies to all of them on the outside chance that even the slightest little piece of your tale might be true!

For starters, Dotti, my son is a leech!

Dear Dotti: My no-account son quit school in the 11th grade and he's been bumming around the house without a job ever since. He eats me out of house and home. He listens to bizarre music all day and night. And if I were betting on it, I'd have to say he's on beer and drugs. I've told him to get out and stay out more times than I can count. But what does he do? Pack up and leave? No — he laughs in my face. I know a good mother is supposed to love her son but I've got to be honest — I don't even like him anymore. Besides, at the age of 28, he ought to be on his own. What should I do? — Tina in New Jersey

TINA in New Jersey.

Dear Tina: Off-duty cops are ALWAYS looking for ways to "exercise" their night sticks — and they work cheap, too. Why don't you ask one to pay a visit — and show that bonehead you call a son the door?

I could laugh at fat people all day long!

Dear Dotti: You've told you that you don't make nearly enough fun of fat people? If they haven't, they should. I don't want to sound like a jerk or anything. But I can't help it — fat people are funny. In fact, everything they do is funny. Before anybody gets mad — just look at my picture. Wheeee! I'm a fatty, too! — Fiona in California

FIONA in California.

Dear Fiona: You're fat all right — a big, fat drunk. And when you sober up and realize that you sent this letter, you're really going to laugh — NOT!

Why did God kill Mommy and Daddy?

Dear Dotti: I am 9 years old. I love my mommy and daddy but God made their car wreck and now they are dead. I don't know if they're ever com-

Will God bring them back? My Sunday School teacher told me that God can do anything. Will He bring them back? — Timmy in Arkansas

Dear Timmy: A lot of folks may get angry with me for saying it, but yes, Timmy, God will bring your mommy and daddy back. It might not be today. And it might not be tomorrow. But one day real soon they'll wake you from a deep, lollipop-dream sleep and you'll be a family again, not just for a little while, but for an eternity in the beautiful and perfect space that God has prepared for you in Heaven. And when that day comes, my young friend, it is imperative that you mention that I, Dotti Primrose, that nice advice columnist at Weekly World News, helped you to keep the faith. Because who knows? As honest and forthright as I've been in my life and in this column, I might have said and done a few things that may have been open to interpretation by a Higher Power. And if that were the case, my little friend, then I might not get to meet you and your parents after you get back together with them. So keep praying and trusting in God, Timmy, and know in your heart that He will make you and your mommy and daddy a family again. And even if I'm not personally there to witness the indescribable joy of your wondrous reunion, I know in will come true. Love, Dotti.

Who should I marry: Jay Leno or David Letterman?

Dear Dotti: I'm madly in love with Jay Leno and David Letterman. I know they are wealthy, but money isn't the thing with me. I want a man who can laugh at life and who loves his woman. Aside from that, there's not that much to worry about. Deciding which late-night dream boat to pursue is what I can't decide. Who would you go after — Jay or David? For me, it's a coin toss! — Cindy in Ohio

CINDY in Ohio.

Dear Cindy: I could prattle on about your situation but I'll keep it short and sweet: The next time the Good Lord gives out brains and patty-melts on the same day, for the love of Pete — get in the right line!

CONFIDENTIALS

Dear Loving Mother in Maryland: You're lying through those cheap, discolored dentures you try to pass off as teeth: There's no "loving mother" alive who'd enter a 3-year-old daughter in one of those godawful beauty contests!

Dear Screamin' Mimi in Nevada: Yes, but does the vacuum hose respect you in the morning?

Dear Queen William in Kansas: Out of the closet is one thing — into the restroom at the elementary school is another. And someday you'll thank me for calling the cops!

Dear Gun Fancier in Tennessee: It's really none of your business, but I'll give you a hint: If I were a criminal, I wouldn't attack Dotti Primrose in her house, car, boat or plane, if you know what I mean!

Dear Distraught in Oregon: Three of your four kids are in jail? Don't sweat! With a couple of reefer-heads like you at the helm, I'm confident you'll get a clean sweep!

Dear Survival-Oriented in England: I have no intentions of stockpiling food and water for the coming collapse — I took care of that YEARS ago!

Here's how YOU can write DOTTI PRIMROSE

WORLD'S FIRST-EVER EXECUTIONER'S SCHOOL

THE K

By KEVIN CREED / Weekly World News

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Former hangman Donald Ingerdon is no longer stringing up convicted murderers. But he's still making his living in the capital punishment business — after opening the first-ever "Executioner's School" to instruct students on the fine points of the trade!

Ingerdon, who left his department of corrections job in the Pacific Northwest in 1996, says there's good money to be made in sending bad guys to their final resting place.

"Capital punishment will soon be one of the most lucrative industries in America," Ingerdon says. "As the pubic begins to take capital punishment more and more seriously, America will be paying executioners $5,000 to $10,000 per job.

"As the number of murders in this country increases, and more killers are condemned to death, qualified executioners are going to be at a premium.

"The truth is, most executioners are poorly trained and — frankly — bunglers. Consider the recent botched executions in the state of Florida where two prisoners actually caught on fire in the electric chair.

"In my classes, I demonstrate the do's and don'ts of capital punishment. I treat it like a craft, which it is. When they finish the class, my students can work anywhere.

"And the beauty of it is, once an executioner has developed a variety of skills — hanging, gassing, electrocution and lethal injection — he or she can go from state to state.

"They can book executions the way rock stars book engagement tours.

"And they can also work in the booming overseas market. In Iran and Arabia, there are hundreds of executions every year."

So what does Ingerdon teach in his unconventional school? Here are just a few subjects that are addressed:

✔The correct positioning of the convict on the lethal injection gurney. (Ingerdon refuses to use the word victim in describing the person who is being executed.)

✔The proper application of restraints in the electric chair, in the gas chamber seat and on the lethal injection gurney.

Ingerdon says most executioners make them too tight or too loose. The restraints must be confining without seriously restricting circulation — the blood must be able to carry the lethal substance through the system.

✔Correct body-weight-to-rope-length ratio in hanging. If a convict is too heavy and the rope is too long, you risk beheading him, causing unpleasant criticism from death-penalty opponents.

Ingerdon says that a diploma from his school is a priceless commodity.

"My graduates can work anywhere," he says.

So far, 207 people have earned degrees from his school.

PROTECT YOUR PET FROM HEART DISEASE — WITH LOTS OF LOVE!

Giving your pet large doses of love and affection makes it much healthier, according to a new university study that could cast doubts on some laboratory research.

"We found that even on a high-cholesterol diet, animals treated with love and affection came down with only one-third to one-half of the heart disease that the other animals suffered," says researcher Dr. J. Fredrick Cornhill.

In fact, he said, the study showed that love and affection decreased the amount of cholesterol that formed on the arterial wall.

In the study, five groups of rabbits were fed a high-cholesterol diet.

Two of the groups received normal laboratory animal care. But the other three groups received personal attention and love.

"They were treated like pets," said Dr. Cornhill.

The researchers, he said, established a "one-to-one relationship with each animal in these groups. Each animal was handled, stroked, talked to and played with."

While the loved rabbits turned out to be healthier, the rabbits that were unloved showed a significantly higher incidence of heart disease, said Dr. Cornhill.

The implications of the study are far-reaching, observed Dr. Michael Fox, an expert in the study of animal behavior.

"It puts a big question mark on the validity of a lot of animal research. It could mean that a lot of lab studies on animals aren't worth a damn.

"What we do to animals — often unthinkingly — affects them and can then affect the validity of our results."

Dr. Fox added, "Too many people don't meet the emotional needs of their own pets. An animal that's shown love and attention will be a healthier animal."

Serena Sabak

Let Dallas-based Serena help you! Write to her c/o Weekly World News, 600 E. Coast Ave. Lantana, Fla. 33464-0002. We'll forward your letters to her. Don't send money. Serena's advice is free. NOTE: Though she tries her best, it would be impossible for Serena to answer all of the thousands of letters she gets each week.

HENRY in Illinois.

Dear Serena: I'm afraid my wife is cheating on me but not with another man — I think she's having an affair with a woman!

We've been happily married for seven years and she has always been kind of shy about sex. But lately she has taken a real interest in some of my Playboy magazines — even though she used to say they were disgusting. I didn't think anything of it until she started spending a lot of time with a woman who one of my friends said is a lesbian. She'll never say what they do together and I'm afraid their relationship has become more than just a friendship. Am I being too suspicious or is my wife having a lesbian love affair? — Henry in Illinois

Dear Henry: Your wife is having an affair with this woman — and it's not the first time. You are entering a complicated period in your marriage. Your wife will soon tell you the whole truth: She loves you very much and wants to stay with you — but also wants to have girlfriends. It will be up to you to decide whether you two will remain married.

Dear Serena: I have an overwhelming feeling that one of my cats is the reincarnation of my best friend. She died in a car wreck three years ago, about the same time I got the cat. My friend loved to play tennis and this cat spends all day playing with tennis balls. And the cat has really big, friendly eyes — just like my friend did. That's the only evidence I have, but for the past two months I've had a feeling in my heart that my cat was once my best friend. Am I right? — Priscilla in Maine

PRISCILLA in Maine.

Dear Priscilla: Your cat is not a reincarnation of your friend. You have been thinking about your friend because she's been trying to contact you from the afterlife. Meditate about her when you go to bed, and her message will become clear.

Dear Serena: Can you please help me? I have a problem that is ruining my life. I can't stop making fun of people. I try everything but I just can't stop my terrible habit. I have even been punched a couple of times when I made fun of the wrong people but that still didn't help me. Can you cast some kind of spell to help me out? — Stuart in Georgia

STUART in Georgia.

Dear Stuart: The spell has been cast. You probably have already noticed you are becoming a much nicer person. A lot of credit goes to you for realizing you needed to change your personality.

Dear Serena: Maybe this sounds dumb but whenever my dog sees me naked I feel really weird inside. It makes me think he might have been a person in a former life — maybe even some creepy old man. Serena, can you give me a "past-life" reading on my pet? — Creeped-out in Nebraska

Dear Creeped-out: Your pet never was a human in a former life — and he never even realizes when you are naked or have clothes on. The feelings you have are more of a reflection of your most recent past life, when you were a very modest and refined lady.

Dear Serena: Will my husband ever come back to me? When he left he said it was forever, but in the past he's always come back. I guess this time I'm a little concerned because he's been gone for more than a year and I heard he even moved out of the country. Please tell me, is he gone for good? — Janice in California

ZACHARY in Ohio.

Dear Janice: He'll return to you next month, but he will be bringing his new fiancee. Get a new lawyer now and be prepared to hammer him in divorce court.

Dear Serena: My grandmother sent me a card for my 18th birthday. It had only $10 in it, which is weird because she sent my sister and both my brothers $50 when they turned 18. Why did I get shorted? I'm hoping it was a honest mistake. — Zachary in Ohio

Dear Zachary: Your grandmother considered not sending you any money since she loaned you $320 to pay your speeding tickets last month. But being the kind woman she is, she decided to send you $10 anyway — so don't complain.

'IT'S A MIRACLE'

. . . SAY BAFFLED DOCS!

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Miraculous pianist Lee Trilby is totally paralyzed from head to toe, but mysteriously he can still play the piano — while lying flat on his back!

Trilby is a former concert pianist who was crippled in a terrible 1997 car crash. He suffered complete paralysis in the wreck and today can't even speak or blink.

Paralyzed pianist still plays beautifully — while lying flat on his back!

By GEORGE PIKE
Weekly World News

LEE TRILBY normally can't move a muscle, but for some unknown reason, his arms and hands develop a mind of their own — any time he's near a piano!

But for reasons doctors can't explain, Trilby's arms come alive by themselves and play everything from beautiful sonatas to rousing show tunes.

His wife Janet is as baffled as the doctors — and says she was stunned when she heard her disabled husband playing the piano back in late July.

"He spends most of his time in the hospital bed we bought for him to have here at the house," she said. "I roll it around to different windows so he can look outside.

"One day I had put him so he could see out the back window. He was near the piano and from the other side of the house I heard him playing.

"I couldn't believe my ears," she said. "I ran in there and Lee was lying on his back with his hands back on the piano keys, playing some jazzy ragtime piece."

But as astonishing as it was to see paralyzed Lee playing, Janet soon became brokenhearted when she realized her husband was still paralyzed.

"He couldn't move any other part of his body," she said. "It was like his arms had become possessed by the grace of God — and they were magically playing the piano."

In the past three months, Janet has rolled Lee over to the piano nearly every day — and he always plays up a storm.

"The doctors can't explain it," she said. "One of them fumbled around talking about some kind of latent reflex reaction or something but he admitted he didn't know what he was talking about." Only one of Trilby's doctors would agree to comment on the condition — and he asked to not be identified.

"It is sometimes painful for medical professionals to admit they don't have any idea what is going on," he said. "Perhaps we have to be satisfied with calling this a miracle.

"That's the only way I know to explain it."

China orders millions of men to get sex changes!

BEIJING, China — China's disastrous one-child-per-couple law has led to such an imbalance between men and women — one male for every three females — that officials have launched a plan to "encourage" millions of men to get sex-change choice of going under the knife or serving decades in so-called reeducation camps, according to a report in a Taiwanese newspaper.

The plan will go into effect by the Year 2000, the report states.

BLOOD LUST SPAWNS VAMPIRE CULTS IN U.S.

IS YOUR TEEN TURNING INTO A BLOODSUCKER?

. . . here's how you can tell:

Your teen may have already been recruited into a deadly vampire cult — but by learning to recognize a few key warning signs, you can act now to rescue your child from this hellish subculture. "Vampire cults are spreading like wildfire through the United States, with teens being attracted like moths to a flame with promises of unlimited power, eternal life and incredible sex," the New York Post warned recently.

By MIKE FOSTER
Weekly World News

The hit 1994 movie Interview with the Vampire, based on Anne Rice's best-selling novel, spawned countless vampire-enthusiast organizations around the country, experts say.

While some of these groups are made up of harmless young horror buffs, others are evil "clans" that actually suck human blood.

In Houston, 13 teens in vampire costumes kidnapped a 17-year-old boy, sexually assaulted him, set him on fire — then tried to rip out his tongue.

Five teens belonging to a Kentucky blood-drinking cult were arrested for the savage murder of a member's parents.

Experts say the following are signs that your teen has been lured into one of these blood-crazed cults:

• PALE COMPLEXION — Vampire wannabes favor Pitt in Interview with the Vampire. They often apply white powder to their faces.

• BLACK CLOTHING — Dark clothes are a "fashion must" for young vampires. They wouldn't be caught undead in bright apparel.

• BLACK FINGERNAILS — This is a definite vampire cultist trademark — particularly when only one hand is painted.

• BECOMING A NIGHT OWL — If your teen begins staying out later and later each night, while "sleeping in" well into the day, he or she is very likely caught up in the vampire lifestyle.

• SUNGLASSES, EVEN AT NIGHT — Vampire recruits are taught to fear the sun, and never leave home without their shades.

• FIXATION ON DEATH — Teens who exhibit an unhealthy concern with death — hanging out at cemeteries, for example — or talk obsessively about immortality, are easy prey for vampire cults.

• STRANGE CONTAINERS IN REFRIGERATOR — If your teenager begins leaving odd-looking unmarked bottles in your fridge, beware: It could be

'Vampire' teens busted after they called home for stake

By MAGGIE HABERMAN and ANDY GELEN

Cops seized a stake to cut the throat of a vampire — but ended up busting the group's leader on drug charges instead.

Police say the group — composed of a half dozen suburban kids — met in a cemetery to worship Satan.

Police said the group's leader, Jeffrey Dahmer, 18, of Monroe, Ky., was held on a warrant charging her with beating an ex-boyfriend.

Brooke Newsome, 15, of Merritt Island, Fla., and her friend Rebecca Ramirez, 16, of Melbourne, Fla., were arrested Thursday.

Police said the girls were on probation for a drug bust.

Computer geek gets revenge!

Warning to big companies: Don't treat computer geeks with disrespect!

One formerly prominent California firm did — and paid a heavy price.

A disgruntled nerd quit after being teased and humiliated by bosses and co-workers. But before he left, he reprogrammed the computer, commanding it to erase every account in its memory six who owed them how much so they couldn't send out any bills.

In desperation, the firm took out ads, urging their customers to do the right thing and pay up.

Of course, no one did.

The company wound up going bankrupt.

NEW YORK CITY — Some Americans think Southerners are stupid because they speak with a drawl.

Oldster forgot where he parked rental car — and he's been looking for it for more than a month!

By ANN VICTORIA / Weekly World News

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — An elderly man who forgot where he parked his rented car owes the rental company a staggering $2,198.40 — and the bill is getting bigger with each passing day!

The ordeal began 32 days ago when Robert Cuffler, 71, took his car into an auto repair shop and rented a Cadillac Sedan DeVille.

"I only needed a car for a couple days," says the retired welder. "And I always wanted to drive a Cadillac. So, even though it was expensive, I decided to splurge. After taxes, license fees and those other hidden costs, the rate came to $68.70 per day."

Cuffler says he lost the car the first day he had it. He parked in the part of the city known as the Las Olas district — at least he thinks that's where he was.

"I walked around and looked at the little galleries, coffee houses and bookstores," he says. "I have no idea how long I walked or exactly where I went, but when I decided to go back to the car, I couldn't find it.

"I've looked for it every day since then. I've even had my wife, kids and grandkids help me, but it's still missing."

Cuffler delayed notifying authorities for more than a month — ("out of pride," he admits). The car has still not been recovered.

Incredibly, Cuffler's situation is not unique. A spokesman for the rental company says that nationwide the "forgetful-parker" problem is becoming more and more common.

"We're not sure why," he said, "but we're getting a lot of these cases. People just lose their cars.

"And it's not just people in their 70s either. We're seeing the same thing happening with people in their 50s.

"It may be that baby boomers are aging and their memories are beginning to fade. The boomers comprise a large portion of our population. We had 126 cases of lost cars last year — not stolen, lost.

"Our hearts go out to this gentleman. But we really have no choice but to keep his account open until we get the car back."

FORGETFUL Robert Cuffler had his wife, children and grandchildren out looking for the rented Cadillac Sedan DeVille.

He owes the car company $2,198 — and the bill's getting bigger every day!

UFOs ARE PILOTED BY ANGELS & DEMONS — & THEY'RE PLANNING A DOGFIGHT THAT COULD DESTROY US ALL!

Satan's spaceships are abducting humans by the thousands — to add to his army of evil spirits, experts warn!

BIBLE expert and author Thomas E. Kostkas.

By MICHAEL FORSYTH
Weekly World News

UFOs that crash on Earth are not flying saucers piloted by ordinary space aliens — they are faster-than-light vessels operated by demons and blasted out of the sky in dogfights with good angels!

What's more, the ghosts of the dead demon pilots haunt the Earth, possessing humans and wreaking havoc.

And chillingly, their numbers are growing steadily larger as we hurtle toward the Year 2000 and the final conflict between the forces of good and evil, a startling new book warns.

"A big war is coming," Bible expert Thomas E. Kostkas, author of the new book Why? Angels with UFOs, said in an exclusive Weekly World News interview.

Kostkas believes that God's angels, created at the dawn of time in billions of different far-off galaxies, travel to Earth in a variety of oddly shaped vessels we have come to call UFOs.

The Bible repeatedly refers to the use of such UFOs by angels — for example, God's banishment of Adam and Eve from the garden of Eden is described this way:

"So He drove out the man and He placed at the East of the Garden of Eden Cherubims and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life." (Genesis 3: 24)

Says Kostkas, "I personally believe these were heavenly beings in UFOs, hovering over the entrance of the garden, beaming down a ray, rotating it from side to side in order to keep Adam and Eve from returning."

Kostkas contends that there are trillions of angels.

But before the start of human history, one third of the angels joined Satan in a rebellion against God.

"I believe this confrontation was the first intergalactic angelic war," said Kostkas.

Many angelic craft were lost in the battle and Satan and his host were forever banished from Heaven. — which is where mankind comes in.

"I believe God is going to replace Satan and his followers with people from Earth who put their faith in His word and follow him," said the Bible expert.

The Good Book actually speaks of three Heavens: The first is our own upper atmosphere, the second is the stars and the third is the ultimate Heaven where God lives.

"Satan and his angels have been banished from the third Heaven," Kostkas says. "The Archangel Michael and his angels patrol its boundaries to the U.N. did to Iraq. If they enter the no-fly zone, battle ensues. This is an actual battle between UFOs. They literally shoot what appear to be balls of light at one another, trying to destroy each other."

This explains the phenomena known as "shooting stars," he explained.

"Not everything that looks like an asteroid coming in really is one — some are really falling UFOs that have been hit and are burning up."

Contrary to common belief, both good angels and fallen ones — also known as demons — have physical bodies and can be killed.

When the bodies of fallen angels are destroyed in UFO dogfights, their disembodied spirits live on and create chaos on Earth.

Countless demon UFOs have been shot down over the centuries, meaning an ever-increasing population of evil spirits here.

But the fact that our planet is now brimming to capacity with menacing evil spirits is only the tip of the iceberg, the author warns.

Satan knows that the final war between good and evil is fast approaching — and that his army, composed of only a third of the angels, is outnumbered by the two-thirds that are loyal to God.

Because angels can't breed, Satan's minions have instead embarked on a program of genetic engineering, trying to create a race of intelligent beings that can beef up his ranks.

Their UFOs routinely abduct humans, steal their sperm and egg cells, manipulate the genetic material, then implant the hybrid embryos in women who are dropped off on Earth with their memories of the violation erased.

"Later the fallen angels return to Earth and retrieve the offspring," said Kostkas.

The whole universe is moving inexorably toward a final battle, in which the whole world — including humans, angels and demon-spawned hybrids — will be fighting over Jerusalem.

"I believe that war has already begun in the skies above us," says Kostkas."

You can order a copy of Why? Angels with UFOs by contacting Thomas Kostkas at P.O. Box 195, East McKeesport, Pa. 15035. The cost is $13.50, including sale tax and U.S. shipping.

Scientists search for gene that causes laziness!

LONDON — Four of the world's leading scientists are ready to launch an important new study — to find out if being lazy is all in the genes!

The experts believe that pinpointing a "lazy gene" could lead to treatments that would increase a person's desire to work.

The study was inspired by researchers' findings that

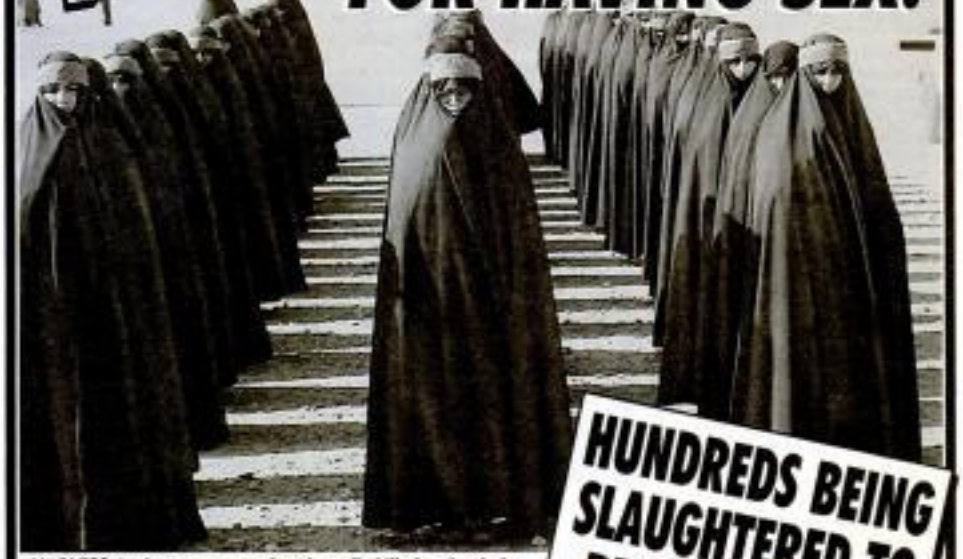
ARAB PARENTS MURDERING THEIR DAUGHTERS — FOR HAVING SEX!



HUNDREDS BEING SLAUGHTERED TO PROTECT THEIR FAMILY HONOR!

HAPLESS Arab women are often brutally killed — by their own parents, brothers or sisters.

RESAIFA, Jordan — Human-rights activists are concerned by a frightening new trend: Fanatical Arabs are tracking down female relatives who've stained the family honor — and killing them!

By MICHAEL FORSYTH/ Weekly World News

In recent years, hundreds of women accused of sexual misconduct have been slain by their own parents or siblings eager to protect the family's good name.

In one shocking case reported in The New York Times, a family called the al-Gouls spent six years hunting down their daughter Basma because she was suspected of adultery.

Basma's husband had accused the young woman of infidelity and so she ran away, fearing for her life. Her husband eventually gave up on her and obtained a divorce, while she ended up remarrying in a far-off town.

But back home in this tiny Muslim village, where a woman's chastity is prized above anything else, her family found itself scorned by neighbors.

"We were the most respected family with the best reputation — then we were disgraced," the girl's mother Um Tayseer told The Times. "No one would even visit us. They would say only 'You have to kill.'"

So the dedicated mom did what duty demanded. She armed herself with a handgun and went searching for her daughter — determined to pump her full of bullets.

Despite years of relentless effort, the pistol-packing mom failed to catch the elusive fugitive. Basma's 16-year-old brother also joined in the woman-hunt and eventually managed to locate the runaway bride. As cornered Basma cowered in terror, her kid brother pulled his gun and blew her away — finally restoring the family honor.

When they heard the good news, neighbors showered the boy with praise for his courage in avenging the family's honor. Some even gave him money to buy a reward for himself.

"Now we can walk with our heads held high," said the victim's 18-year-old sister Amal proudly.

According to age-old Arab tradition, an unchaste woman is worse than a murderer and her dishonor infects not only herself but her entire clan. Even sexual misconduct that is suspected but never proven automatically turns a woman into a human target.

The bloody practice known as honor killing is widespread throughout the Mideast. And in recent years, as modern Western ideas about sexual freedom have encouraged women to indulge in riskier behavior, more and more

Cops continue hunt for the 'Zorro Rapist!'

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain — Police are hunting for a sex fiend who's been nicknamed the Zorro Rapist. The twisted sicko totes an electric razor and shaves his trademark — the letter M — into the hair of his victims before disappearing like the fictional sword-wielding bandit.

But the victims, who range in age from 16 to 31, say the elusive creep looks nothing like sexy actor Antonio Banderas, who plays Zorro on film, describing their assailant suspect as short and bald. Police believe M might be the suspect's first or last initial.

WORLD'S FIRST ANGEL-TO-ENGLISH DICTIONARY!

LONDON — Communicating with angels will soon get a whole lot easier. A publishing company has put out what it calls "the first Angel/English dictionary."

Until now, many angels have contacted humans but spoke in either Latin or an unintelligible language believed to be the native tongue of the celestial beings — leaving the contactees baffled. The new book will help translate the gibberish spoken by God's messengers into important revelations, the authors claim.

YO-YOS WERE USED AS DEADLY WEAPONS!

Donald Duncan, who invented the yo-yo, came up with the idea by watching Filipino sailors playing with rocks that had cords attached to them. The rocks were used to stone enemies to death. The cords were used to retrieve the rocks afterward.

MAN KILLED BY CURSE OF MUMMY'S HAND!

A real-life Indiana Jones was killed by an ages-old Egyptian curse, researchers say.

While exploring Egypt back in 1884, English adventurer Walter Ingram discovered the mummified hand of an ancient princess, found clutching a gold plaque. Inscribed on the plaque were the chilling words, "Whoever takes me away to a foreign country will die a violent death and his bones will never be found."

Not to be deterred by silly superstition, the intrepid Englishman brought the cursed hand back to London. Sure enough, four years later in the wilds of Africa, Ingram was trampled to death by a elephant. Native guides carefully buried his body in the bed of a dried-up river, but when friends later returned to recover his body, they found that a freak flood had washed it away!

ST. LOUIS WOMAN

MEDICAL MYSTERY OF THE YEAR!

St. LOUIS, Mo. — Doctors call perky mom Judith Houvret one of the most unusual women in the world because she lays eggs just like a hen — and babies have hatched from three of them!

"There are no more than a half dozen such cases in the medical history books," said Dr. Peter Fenley, a top British specialist who was called in to examine Mrs. Houvret and her tots. "This case is truly amazing, particularly because the children appear to be perfectly healthy."

Incredibly, Mrs. Houvret "roosts" on her eggs just like a mother hen — earning her the nickname of Chicken Lady among her flabbergasted neighbors. In addition to her newly hatched son Andy, she has produced two other egg babies, daughters Kim, 5, and Elinor, 2.

Until now, the embarrassed Houvrets have kept a low profile to avoid unwanted publicity.

But recently, they allowed a Weekly World News cameraman to come into their home and follow the miracle mom in the weeks leading up to the delivery of her youngest child.

"Watching that baby use its tiny fist to smash its way out of its shell was the most remarkable thing I've ever seen — it was awesome and moving at the same time," the photographer said.

Experts believe Mrs. Houvret's unusual reproductive system results from a rare "evolutionary throwback," perhaps caused by recessive genes. "Science has demonstrated that humans descend from amphibious, egg-laying creatures," explained Dr. Fenley. "From time to time, throwbacks do crop up. There are a handful of reports from around the world about women who've delivered egg-like sacs with embryos inside, but the offspring were stillborn or expired after a few hours.

"Mrs. Houvret's babies are the only ones I'm aware of that have developed to full term and have successfully lived after hatching."

'Watching its way

The 28-year-old housewife says she first began to produce eggs in puberty. "When my friends got their periods they had cramps, but my pains were out of this world," she recalled. "And when an egg the size of an ostrich egg dropped out of my body, I nearly fainted!"

But it wasn't until she got married that an egg actually became fertilized in her womb. "I knew as soon as it plopped out that it was different," she recalled. "I was suddenly overcome by an urge to protect it from the cold. I squatted down over it and gently shielded it with my body. My husband thought I was crazy, but I kept doing it for hours at a time."

After three months, just when Mrs. Houvret's fed-up hubby was about to demand that they get rid of the egg, a miracle occured, he recalls. "We could see something moving inside the shell and we realized there was a baby inside. Five months later, our first daughter was born!"

The couple tried to keep their story a secret. But it wasn't long before nosy neighbors glimpsed the at-

OTHER 'EGG BABIES' IN HISTORY!

Sprinkled throughout medical history are rare but intriguing accounts of women laying eggs. Here are a few well-documented cases:

- In 16th-century France, court physicians reported the case of a noblewoman who laid more than two dozen eggs over a two-year period. Although the men of science dutifully observed the eggs, none of them ever hatched.
- In Beijing, China, in 1956, a married woman factory worker named Pei Ying Li produced a reddish egg about twice the size of a duck egg. Physicians cracked open the egg and discovered the remains of a tiny human fetus.
- In 1972, a Canadian woman laid a large egg, which hatched six months later. The infant's lungs were underdeveloped, however, and it expired after just a few hours. The Toronto

NOSTRADAMUS' PREDICTIONS FOR 2000!

aqi terrorists decapitate President Bill and First Lady Hillary Clinton while they sleep peacefully in the White House. Freak ti- waves wash over Tokyo and New York on the same day, leveling scrapers and killing millions. And Jesus Christ returns to Earth Easter Sunday — meeting Satan and his demonic armies face-to- in an apocalyptic "good-versus-evil" showdown just months be- all of history grinds to a halt . . . and the world comes to an end!

These are just a sample of the terrifying predictions famed 16th-century Nostradamus made for the Year 2000 — predictions proving beyond doubt we are, in fact, living in the End Times.

"These predictions are mean visions for mean and they ought to scare the hell out of you," de- d historian Dr. Ross Malton, who pent the past 35 years studying ecoding thousands of predictions Nostradamus passed down to us in gendary book, The Centuries.

Nostradamus gives as grim a por- of our future as I have ever seen. the return of Christ will do little to the terror, pain and suffering. In ace of what Nostradamus is telling m terrified — for you, for me, for mily, for everyone. These are ter- times to live in."

Malton says that although Nos- mus' predictions are given in the of highly symbolic verse, 15 of the redictions the seer made for the 000, are "so clear and precise that can only be interpreted one way."

ere are those 15 predictions, fol- l by Dr. Malton's interpretation:

Seer's chilling forecast for NEXT YEAR!

By HENRY WEBER
Weekly World News

1 The slave revolts in senseless si- nce, death falls from the sky on r side, first with fire and then stealth, the New Land buries 00, the former enemy one mil-

"This prediction couldn't be clear- said Dr. Malton. "The slave, of e, is the computer — and the re- s the Y2K computer glitch — the less silence — that we face at one d after midnight on January 1, Death falling from the sky is an ob- reference to nuclear warheads, first with fire, the explosion, and with stealth — invisible but deadly active fallout. The New Land is America. Unfortunately, Nostradamus doesn't specify any targets, although judging from the predicted death toll, I think it's safe to say we're talking about strikes on a major population center — New York or Washington, in the United States, Moscow in Russia."

2 The great man and his wife perish, felled by evil swords, from safe sleep and promise all is lost, the murderers return triumphant (to) Babylon. "There's not much to interpret here — although I wish there were," said Dr. Malton. "In fact, Nostradamus is telling us that terrorists will decapitate the great man — President Bill Clinton and his wife, First Lady Hillary Clinton. The fact that he says they are killed during a safe sleep suggests they are attacked and killed in the White House. He further says they return triumphant to Babylon — Iraq. Triumphant to Nostradamus would mean with the object or objects of their mission — in this case the Clintons' heads."

3 The sea opens and closes, the sea opens and closes, the New City falls and stands in death, the Old City disappears. "The New City is New York City," said Dr. Malton, "and the Old City is Tokyo. The sea opening and closing is how Nostradamus describes back-to-back or possibly even simultaneous tidal waves. To say that the New City falls and stands in death suggests a heavy loss of human life and heavy, but not total, property damage. Tokyo, apparently, will fare less well.

"When Nostradamus says vanishes, he means it."

4 The locusts and the people starve, from north to south to east to west bread is the wealth gold can't buy. "This is a reference to world drought of such severity that even the locusts will do without," Dr. Malton said.

5 From the beginning the end erupts, a night of sickness and despair, the people cry for mercy, there is no mercy for two billion. "Nostradamus is predicting the emergence of an End Times virus" and global epidemic — "the beginning" is Africa where virtually all new viruses come from and the end is what, he says, two billion people face during the night of sickness.

"Of course, Nostradamus isn't the only one predicting a global epidemic. Leading scientists are telling us to expect the same."

6 The secrets of the stars are known, terror fills the land, who will save themselves and become the slaves (of men) not of Earth? "This prediction suggests that extraterrestrials come to Earth and offer humans a way out of Year 2000 chaos — enslavement," Dr. Malton said.

7 Family and family, friend and friend, no safety from within. "Nostradamus is telling us to expect a breakdown of civilization and anarchy and madness that will follow," said Dr. Malton.

"It will be every man, woman and child for himself."

8 On Easter Day our Lord does come, not all is happy in the Land, Satan waits with armies mighty, the battle begins badly for (good) people. "Nostradamus predicts Christ will return to Earth and make himself known in the Holy Land — Jerusalem I would presume — on Easter Sunday," said Dr. Malton. "But the prediction goes on to tell us that Satan will be more than ready. And when the final Battle between Good and Evil — Armageddon — begins, the forces of Evil will achieve early and devastating victories."

9 The New Land trembles for two weeks, in the East, Atlantis. In the East, the gates of Hell. "This is a terrifying prediction indeed," said Dr. Malton. "Nostradamus is warning that for weeks, the New Land, the United States, will be rocked by earthquakes as Atlantis rises in the East. But Atlantis, he tells us, isn't merely a lost city — Atlantis is the gateway to Hell."

10 The New Landers see nothing, but they suffer like sheep, the people see nothing, but they die like sheep. There is no safety in numbers, invisible enemies rule their cities. "This refers to the release of the anthrax virus in big cities such as Los Angeles, New York, Kansas City, Atlanta, Miami, Philadelphia, Chicago, Dallas, Miami," said Dr. Malton. "Invisible enemies are terrorists."

11 They pretend to be who they aren't and the people are confused, why do 11 wear the Crown of Thorns? They are evil. "Nostradamus is warning of 11 Anti-Christs who will rise to power in the Year 2000," Dr. Malton said.

12 Countries old bid for evil, their goodness a deception. "This is a warning that Europe — the old countries — will fight for Satan in the Battle of Armageddon," Dr. Malton said.

13 Some will serve Satan, others will not, decisions made on this day will last forever, and yet the Battle rages on. "At some point during the year, apparently while the Battle of Armageddon is still being waged, there will be enticements or offers from Satan," said Dr. Malton. "The decisions people make about whom to serve — Satan or God — at this particular juncture in history will, as Nostradamus says, be irrevocable and will last forever. The fact that anyone might choose to side with Satan suggests that at this particular time, the war will be going badly for God and Christ."

14 The smoke is thick, the stench strong, those who remain are not men. "As the end of all things grows nearer, humanity is reduced to an animal-like state," Dr. Malton explained.

15 December 11 ends and begins, 144,000 rise from the grave, to the kingdom of Heaven, to the billions Hell. "Nostradamus tells us God and Christ vanquish Satan and Evil on December 11, 2000 — the day the world ends," said Dr. Malton. "And he doesn't varnish the truth — only 144,000 men, women and children are Heaven-bound," said Dr. Malton. "This figure is given to us in the Bible. "And as terrifying as the prospect is, virtually everyone who ever lived is going to Hell."

GIANT HOROSCOPE

By SERENA SABAK
PSYCHIC ASTROLOGER TO THE RICH AND FAMOUS

For the week of November 1

ARIES
Mar. 21 — Apr. 19

Your ability to make snap decisions will save the day this week when a friend calls with a sticky problem.

Insecurities and fears that have been plaguing you for the past couple of months will disappear when you realize they were unfounded.

You've been enjoying yourself too much at the dinner table. Start eating more sensible portions.

TAURUS
Apr. 20 — May 20

Opportunities await this week for the alert Taurus. Be open for a chance for economic gain. Remember that it's always wise to put caution before commitment.

The weekend is a good time for a brief trip. Even a long drive can be relaxing.

Take a good look at your life to determine whether you're being fair to yourself and those around you.

GEMINI
May 21 — June 20

Don't let others put a damper on your natural cheerfulness this week. People will try to drag you down with their doomsday attitude — but don't be bogged down with their problems.

This is a good time to make headway on personal goals. Get advice from people who know what they're talking about and you will be on your way to success.

CANCER
June 21 — July 22

This week is the time to both look ahead and reflect on the past year. Plan goals for your personal life and stick to them, even when the going gets tough.

Your generosity toward a friend may be holding him back. Your sense of loyalty could get you in trouble when a friend tries to get you to do something you know you shouldn't.

LEO
July 23 — Aug. 22

Put the world on hold this week. Do only what absolutely must be done, then sit back and let others take the initiative for a change.

Your new approach could bring a welcome change of attitude on the part of family, friends or co-workers. If someone offers an exciting invitation, go for it.

A delightful reunion could be in store for you.

VIRGO
Aug. 23 — Sept. 22

It may seem that you are confronted by new problems at every turn this week, but if you keep your sights set on the long-term goal, minor obstacles will be easily overcome.

A change of scenery could do you a world of good. There's no need to wing off to the other side of the world, but set aside an afternoon to go out of town and clear your head.

LIBRA
Sept. 23 — Oct. 22

Something you see on television this week could get the creative juices flowing and set you on the road to financial security. But just wishing will not get the job done — you've got to follow through on your ideas.

Your natural knack for tact and diplomacy could settle a simmering family dispute before it reaches the boiling point.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23 — Nov. 21

This week will be a good time to make a strong impression on someone who can change your life. But someone you trust may take credit for your hard work. Watch out!

Don't be afraid to dig into your bank account for a little financial adventure.

A sense of complacency may soon give way to a new sense of adventure and excitement.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22 — Dec. 21

Your feisty outlook on life is driving your detractors up the wall. Whatever you do, don't give in to them this week.

No matter what you may think, love has not passed you by. A positive attitude could get you through tough times.

The days ahead hold surprises. Tidy up loose ends in your life and be ready to act quickly. You may need to make unexpected changes of direction.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22 — Jan. 19

Luck is on your side this week and a financial windfall definitely appears to be on the horizon. Share the wealth and you'll position yourself for even more good fortune in the future.

Your intuition has been right on the mark lately — just be sure you resist the temptation to overreact. Don't do anything that will make your neighbors hate you.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20 — Feb. 18

A project you didn't put enough work into is catching a lot of attention. This weak effort may catch up to you this week.

Your tendency to be overly generous could put you in hot water. Don't be bamboozled into any hasty deals.

Heading to a new and exciting location could open up wonderful things for you. Explore intriguing opportunities and be ready for a change.

PISCES
Feb. 19 — Mar. 20

It will pay to be wary this week of a bizarre opportunity that may prove to be exactly what you've been looking for. If you have any doubts, check with experts before moving ahead.

A surge of energy makes it possible for you to accomplish almost anything you want. Set your goals high.

Let a loved one know how much you care.

If your birthday is this week . . .

It's time to break out of your rut and live a little. The planets are aligned in a perfect way to make this one of the best years of your life.

Don't be afraid to take risks and dive into exciting adventures — they'll be fun and rewarding.

Get friends involved in your plans. You'll meet a person in the fall who

STUDY REVEALS WHICH SIX LOTTERY NUMBERS COME UP THE MOST!

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — A six-year nationwide survey has determined the numbers that come up most frequently in lotteries across the U.S. — and an expert has conclusive proof that they'll keep coming up the most often in the future!

And right here are the lucky numbers: 5, 16, 25, 31, 42 and 44.

While some mathematicians claim there's no guarantee these numbers will come up as frequently in the future, new evidence proves you CAN expect these numbers to pop up in lotteries all over the U.S.

"There's a very complicated formula that indicates past results can be an indicator of future performance if the research is done correctly," said Dr. Steven Rigel, a noted math expert and former college professor. "The formula is difficult for even advanced mathematicians to understand and the tests must follow very rigid guidelines.

MATH EXPERT Steven Rigel.

"For example, if you did a lottery numbers test with a small sample of perhaps six months or a year, there wouldn't be enough evidence to indicate which numbers are a solid choice to come up in the future."

"But statistics show that after four and a half years of studying at least 11 lotteries, you can establish a clear pattern," he said. "We added an extra 18 months and followed 34 different lotteries to confirm our findings — and the results kept coming back the same. Some numbers clearly come up more often."

But Dr. Rigel warned against assuming that the numbers will automatically come up every time.

"While you can be assured that the six most frequent numbers will continue to pop up all over the country, you can't be guaranteed that they will come up at any given time or in any given state lottery," he said. "Also, you can't be sure that they'll all come up in the same drawing to yield a full jackpot.

"But if I were advising a lottery player on what numbers to use, I wouldn't hesitate to say 5, 16, 25, 31, 42 and 44," he said.

"Those numbers have made a lot of money for a lot of people in the past few years. And

MAN FINDS HIS SEVERED FINGER — IN A CAN OF GREEN BEANS!

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN: Manuel Mendes' missing right pinkie showed up — two years after it was severed.

By ENRIQUE VASQUEZ / Weekly World News

MEXICO CITY — Farm worker Manuel Mendes couldn't believe his eyes when he opened a can of green beans and found the finger he accidentally chopped off while working in 1995 — a coincidence that could never happen in the United States because processing plants here have far higher standards!

Pinkie was accident —

"It's a miracle," declared the 46-year-old farm worker after doctors confirmed that the perfectly preserved pinkie he recovered from the can really did belong on his right hand.

"After the accident two years ago I never expected to see my finger again.

"But just last week, there it was — packed in a can of green beans I had on a shelf in my kitchen."

The mind-twisting drama began on a sunny summer day in 1996, when Mendes sliced off his finger at the knuckle with the hawkbill knife he was using to harvest beans.

"I felt a sting and then blood started spurting everywhere," said Mendes. "I'd like to sit here and tell you that I calmly picked up the severed finger and took it with me to the hospital.

"But I panicked. All I could think to do was run to my truck and drive to the emergency room, which is exactly what I did."

Mendes said doctors stitched the wound and sent him on his way.

He searched for the severed finger in the field a few days later. But the crop had already been harvested and he couldn't find it.

"As time went on I got used to having just four fingers and

"Out of curiosity, I compared it to my stump to see if it was a match. Sure enough, it looked like my finger. So I took it to the hospital to see what the doctors thought."

Dr. Javier Morales agreed that the finger belonged to Mendes. The farm worker took the pinkie home and put it in a jar of formaldehyde.

"Since newspapers reported the story I've been told that the chances of finding my severed finger in a can of beans were a billion to one against," said Mendes.

"Just think about it. After I sliced it off, somebody had to pick it up as the harvest continued. Then the finger had to travel through a processing plant without anyone seeing it and wind up in the can."

7 WAYS YOU CAN TALK TO YOUR GUARDIAN ANGEL

By MIKE FOSTER/ Weekly World News

Prayer is just one of many ways you can keep in touch with your guardian angel — there are dozens of other ways, says an expert.

"Your personal angel can be a source of companionship, comfort and wise counsel," says Dorothy Liston, author of the upcoming book, The Angel on Your Shoulder. "You should try to communicate with your angel at least once a day."

For her book, the Australian researcher interviewed more than 250 people who say they talk to their guardian angel on a regular basis.

She found there were a wide variety of methods they used to make contact. Here are seven of these proven techniques:

YOUR guardian angel can be an endless source of comfort and companionship.

MEDITATE AT SUNRISE — Angels appear to be most active at daybreak. Simply kneel down, close your eyes and clear your mind. If you're lucky, your angel will begin to communicate with you.

TRY A NATURE WALK — Communing with nature is one of the easiest ways of getting in touch with Heaven. As you walk along a wooded path or look out onto a quiet lake, listen for the gentle whisper of your guardian angel.

LET YOUR FINGERS DO THE WALKING — Instead of throwing out an old telephone, turn it into your private "hot-line" to Heaven.

"Simply pull the phone out of the jack, then keep it by your bedside," says Miss Liston. "When you feel the urge to chat with your guardian angel, just pick up the receiver and start talking. There's a good chance your angel will talk back."

LOOK AT THE STARS — Stand in your front yard and contemplate the heavens above. Gaze intently until a particular star catches your eye.

Now focus on that star and say hello to your guardian angel.

VISIT A CEMETERY — Angels frequently "hang out" in graveyards where they give comfort to the grieving. This is an excellent place to contact your personal angel.

STARE AT RELIGIOUS PAINTING — Find a religious painting or stained-glass window depicting an angel. Focus on the picture for 20 minutes or so, calling out mentally to your angel.

GO TO SLEEP — As your mind relaxes, you open up to higher beings, says Miss Liston. "As you fall
